THE PRESENTATION

Most presentations are divided into 3 main parts (+ questions):

1	INTRODUCTION
2	BODY
3	CONCLUSION	(Questions)
	Questions

As a general rule in communication, repetition is valuable. In presentations, there is a goldenrule about repetition:

1. Say what you are going to say...
2. say it...
3. then say what you have just said.

In other words, use the three parts of your presentation to reinforce your message. In the introduction, you tell your audience what your message is going to be. In the body, you tell youraudience your real message. In the conclusion, you summarize what your message was.

We will now consider each of these parts in more detail.

1. Introduction

The introduction is a very important - perhaps the most important - part of your presentation. This is the first impression that your audience have of you. You should concentrate on getting your introduction right. You should use the introduction to:

1) welcome your audience
2) introduce your subject
3) outline the structure of your presentation
4) give instructions about questions

The following table shows examples of language for each of these functions. You may need tomodify the language as appropriate.

Function	Possible language
1 Welcoming your audience	Good morning, ladies and gentlemen Good morning, gentlemen Good afternoon, ladies and gentleman Good afternoon, everybody
2 Introducing your subject	I am going to talk today about... The purpose of my presentation is to introduce our new rangeof...
3 Outlining your structure	To start with I'll describe the progress made this year. Then I'll mention some of the problems we've encountered and how we overcame them. After that I'll consider the possibilities for further growth next year. Finally, I'll summarize my presentation (before concluding with some recommendations).
4 Giving instructions about questions	Do feel free to interrupt me if you have any questions. I'll try to answer all of your questions after the presentation. I plan to keep some time for questions after the presentation.

2. Body

The body is the 'real' presentation. If the introduction was well prepared and delivered, you willnow be 'in control'. You will be relaxed and confident. The body should be well structured, divided up logically, with plenty of carefully spaced visuals.Remember these key points while delivering the body of your presentation:

- do not hurry
- be enthusiastic
- give time on visuals
- maintain eye contact
- modulate your voice
- look friendly
- keep to your structure
- use your notes
- signpost throughout

- remain polite when dealing with difficult questions

3. Conclusion

Use the conclusion to:

1) Sum up

2) (Give recommendations if appropriate)

3) Thank your audience

4) Invite questions

The following table shows examples of language for each of these functions. You may need tomodify the language as appropriate.

Function	Possible language
1 Summing up	To conclude,... In conclusion,... Now, to sum up... So let me summarize /recap what I've said. Finally, may I remind you of some of the main pointswe've considered.
2 Giving recommendations	In conclusion, my recommendations are... I therefore suggest/propose/recommend the following strategy.
3 Thanking your audience	Many thanks for your attention. May I thank you all for being such an attentive audience.

4 Inviting questions	Now I'll try to answer any questions you may have. Can I answer any questions? Are there any questions? Do you have any questions? Are there any final questions?

4. Questions

Questions are a good opportunity for you to interact with your audience. It may be helpful for you to try to predict what questions will be asked so that you can prepare your response in advance. You may wish to accept questions at any time during your presentation, or to keep a time for questions after your presentation. Normally, it's your decision, and you should make it clear during the introduction. Be polite with all questioners, even if they ask difficult questions. They are showing interest in what you have to say and they deserve attention. Sometimes you can reformulate a question. Or answer the question with another question. Or even ask for comment from the rest of the audience.

TITIK NOL
ENGLISH COURSE
Jl. Brawijaya No. 75, Kampung Inggris, Pare, Kediri, Jawa Timur
0821-1200-6110 | admin@titiknolenglish.com | titiknolenglish.com | titiknolenglish

PRODUCT PROMOTION

Table of contents

1. How to persuade a costumer
2. How to negotiate price in English
3. Useful vocabularies and phrases
4. Product Promotion example

1. How to persuade a costumer

a) Know Your Own Benefits. You can hardly persuade anyone to buy from you if you don't know what the benefits of your products are

b) Use Positive Language. Customers will always remember the benefits longer than they remember the features of a product.

c) Emphasize what's Important. If there are specific benefits of your products that you areparticularly proud of, make sure that you are talking about this to your customers.

d) Set The Benefits In Stone. Customers will ignore benefits that are vague. You need to set yourbenefits in stone and be convincing about it.

Vocabularies for sellers	Phrases for Sellers
Time is Running Out	I am afraid that we can't match that price.
Unbelievable Discounts	I don't think that we could go that far.
You'd Be Crazy to Miss This!	Let's meet in the middle.
Special offer	I think we can do that.
Free shipping	Ok, let's shake on it. (seal the bargain with a handshake)
Free gift with purchase
Free trial
Best value
Money back guarantee
Lowest price
Easy on your wallet!
Free trial
Best value
Money back guarantee
Lowest price
Easy on your wallet!

Free trial
Best value

Questions for Buyers	Phrases for Buyers
How much?	That's too expensive.
What's your best price?	I'm sorry but you'll have to do better than that.
How far can you come down in price to meet me? (What can he take off the price to getcloser to your budget?)	I can't take that to my boss/my husband/wife!
Do you have any flexibility on the price?	I'm on a tight budget so I'm looking for your best price.
What's your friends and family rate?	I don't have a lot of wriggle room. = I cannot increase my budget too much.
How much will you reduce the price if I pay cash?
What can you tell us about this model/product?
What are the specifications of the product?What features does it have?
How does it work?
What is the difference between the previous model and this one?

Useful Vocabularies related to Shopping and Negotiating

Product	Well-known
Discount	Bargain /verb/
Deal	Promote
Cash	Advertise
Expensive / Pricy / costly	Purchase
Cheap / inexpensive	Biggest Sale of the Year
Affordable	Blow Out Sale
High-quality	Buy One, Get One Free
Don't Delay	One Day Sale…Hurry!
Don't Miss Out On	Only Available Today
Exclusive Sale	Only Once a Year
Half Off Sale	Our Lowest Prices Ever
Huge Sale

TITIK NOL
ENGLISH COURSE
Jl. Brawijaya No. 75, Kampung Inggris, Pare, Kediri, Jawa Timur
0821-1200-6110 | admin@titiknolenglish.com | titiknolenglish.com | titiknolenglish

HERE ARE SOME STAGES YOU CAN USE

Note: It will be explained in group or individual. Q and A will be held after the presentation.

The first stage

Introduce your productFunction and Benefit

This is our newest product.
This is one of our latest designs.This particular model is.....
It is made of ....
This is equipped with.....This one features.....
It can be used for. ....
It contains.....

The second stage
Offering a special price

- Buy One, Get One Free
- Unbelievable Discounts
- Special offer
- Free shipping
- Free gift with purchase
- Free trial
- Best value
- Lowest price
- Easy on your wallet!

The last stage
Closing (emphasize your statement)

- You'd Be Crazy to Miss This!
- Don't Delay
- Don't Miss Out On
- Time is Running Out

THE TUTORIAL / HOW TO MAKE SOMETHING

Table of content

1. Warming up questions
2. Useful sequences words and phrases
   a) Beginning
   b) Middle
   c) Ending
3. The example of sequence in sentence

Warming up question

Can you explain what is tutorial? / do? Why

What kind of tutorial you like to watch

Would you like to explain how to make
What beverage or food you like?
.

Do you like to learn something new?
Are you good at cooking?
Would you like to be a youtuber?

1. Useful sequences words and phrases

a) Beginning	c) Middle
• In the beginning • First of all • First • Firstly • To begin • To start b) Ending • Finally • At last • At the end • Afterward • In the end • Lastly • After all • Eventually	• Meanwhile • Then • After that • Later • Next • Second • Third • Secondly • Thirdly • And • Furthermore • Further • Moreover • Another • In addition • Also • After • Before

2. The example of sequence in sentence

a. First*, I'll explain the steps of making instant noodle.* In the beginning, *you have to prepare all ingredients.Firstly, it is important to take several tools.*

b. After that*, you need to take 1 liter of water.*

Next*, turn on the stove.*

Secondly, Peel the garlic.

c. Finally, the scrambled eggs are ready to serve.

Lastly*, put the sauce on the egg.*

3. The example of sequence in sentence

How to Make Scrambled Eggs

Let's learn how to make yummy scrambled eggs at your home with this easy recipe!

Ingredients:

- 2 eggs
- Milk (if desired)
- 1 teaspoon of butter
- A pinch of salt and pepperSteps:

First, crack the eggs into a small bowl and add a pinch of salt and pepper then whisk until all well blended. In a frying pan, add butter and let it melt. Next, pourthe eggs and milk, and for around 20 seconds, do not stir it.
After that, fold the eggs to the center and stir with spatula, and repeat the previousstep until all the eggs are mostly cooked.
Moreover, remove eggs from heat, and keep continue to fold and stir the eggs foraround a minute.
The last, Lift the eggs, put on the serving plate and finally, your scrambled eggs areready to serve.

`

"How to Insert SIM Card Cellphone"

Cellphone is a modern communication device which connects one to the others by voice, written message and data. However, this device cannot work until the SIM cardis inserted. When inserting the SIM Card to cellphone, make sure that the cellphonehas been switched off and follow the direction bellow.
First of all, press the locking catch and slide the cover then lift it off the phone. Afterthat, push two catches in the opposite directions and remove the battery. Next, slidethe SIM card carefully into the slot and make sure that the golden connect arson are facing to the connector of the phone. Then, put the battery and align it until snaps into its place. Finally, insert the two catches of the back cover corresponding slot in the phone and slide the cover forward button of the phone until locks into place. Don't forget to switch on the cellphone. Wait until it is ready to use.

TALK SHOW

Do you often watch a talk show?

What is your favorite talk show? Why

WARMING UP

What are the advantages and disadvantages of talk show?Why

Do you like comedic or political talk show? Why

WHAT IS TALK SHOW?

a radio or television programme on which famous guests are asked questions about themselves, or members of the public discuss a particular subject.

1. TYPES OF TALK SHOW?

A. Interview Talk Shows
B. Political Talk Shows
C. Issue-Based Talk Shows
D. Comedic Talk Shows
E. Talk Show Hosts

2. THE ROLES IN TALK SHOW

A. HOST

A television talk show host is someone who is the main presenter and central element of a talk show, and provides the audience with a stable, identifiable figure they can relate to. He or she typically interviews people of interest as well as celebrities, and may also bring in experts in order to educate theaudience on different topics. Therefore, the television host may act as either an interviewer.

B. GUEST

A person who is invited to take part in a function organized by TV program such as celebrity,politician, expert and etc.

C. AUDIENCE

A group of people watching or observing something such as a television program, live speaker, or theater performance. In Television program, they cheer host or guest in order to improve the situation.

3. PHRASES

Opening the Talk Show:

"Welcome to [Talk Show Name], the show designed to inspire and educate learners of all ages."

"Good [morning/afternoon/evening], and thank you for joining us on [Talk Show Name]."

Introducing the Topic and Guests:

"Today, we have a special episode focusing on..."

"Joining us in the studio, we have esteemed guests who will share their insights on..."

Engaging the Audience:

"We invite you to join the conversation. Feel free to send in your questions and comments."

"We want to hear from you. Share your experiences and thoughts on our social media platforms."

Asking Questions:

"Let's start by exploring the challenges learners often face when..."

"What strategies can learners employ to overcome obstacles in..."

"How can we foster a love for learning in today's fast-paced world?"

Encouraging Guest Interaction:

"Guest A, what are your thoughts on this topic?"

"Guest B, would you like to add anything to that?"

"I'd love to hear from each of our guests on this particular aspect."

Summarizing Key Points:

"So, if I'm hearing you correctly, the key takeaway is..."

"To recap, we've discussed the importance of..."

"Let's quickly review the main ideas we've explored so far."

Sharing Personal Experiences or Stories:

"I remember when I faced a similar situation while…"

"One of our viewers shared a compelling story about their journey in..."

"I'd like to share an inspiring anecdote related to today's topic."

Closing the Talk Show:

"That concludes today's episode of [Talk Show Name]. We hope you found it insightful and thought-provoking."

"Thank you to our guests for sharing their expertise, and thank you to our viewers for tuning in."

"Join us next time as we delve into another exciting topic. Until then, keep learning and exploring."

4. THE STEPS AND EXAMPLES OF TALK SHOW

Host : Ellen Winfrey

Actress, Guest : Angelina Lawrence

OPENING

Host : We are joined now with a big star in the film industry, with her new movie House of Terror premiering this week, nominating her as Scream Queen of the year and the film as best horror film of the year. Please give a warm welcome to the one and only Angelina Lawrence Angelinawalks in, crowd cheers. Host and guest shakes hands and kisses cheeks

Guest : Thank you, thank you.

Host : They love you! Audience cheers

INTERVIEW SESSION

Host : So, how does it feel being nominated for Scream Queen of the Year?

Guest : It has been an incredible journey; the film has turned out so well and working with amazing cast members was such a pleasure. We had some real laughs on set and even some tears! I can'twait for you all to see it looks to camera and audience cheers and claps

Host : Well that's funny you say that, we have a deleted scene show casing the scream queen in action.Clip plays, the clip ends and the audience cheers, Angelina puts her face in her hands embarrassed.

Host : What's wrong?

Guest : How the hell did you get your hands on that? That sneaky bugger…

Host : I am assuming you mean Jack Williams, the director, known for being a real prankster, isn't he?

Guest : How the hell do you know all of this? But, yes you're right! Well basically, Simon, who playsmy close friend in the film decided to prank me in the middle of the shot with a mask I've neverseen before and of course Jack decided to keep the camera rolling…there's no business like show business aye Audience laughs.

CLOSING

Host : I always wondered what happened on the set of a horror film, especially if you've got Jackdirecting…we'll find out more after the break so don't go anywhere.

TALK SHOW SCRIPT

OPENING

Introduction by moderator or host: Good morning / afternoon/ evening. The authority of Indonesiarecently has announced a controversial policy in terms of _____ I'm_and you're watching_. Today/tonight we'll be talking about ____. To better understand these events, we'll talk with_____, who is___; as well as_____, who_____. Finally, for aperspective from a_____, we'll also have_____on our show.We're going to start with____. Mr/Mrs._____ ____, tell us_____.

INTERVIEW SESSION

1st Guest : Well_.

Host's response : Let's go to_____for a response. Mr/Mrs._____, what do you think of___'s comment?

2nd guest : Well, _____

1st Guest response to 2nd guest: ____

Continue in talk show/round table discussion format, involving all guests in a dialogue/debate thatshows different sides of the issues involved:

CLOSING

Concluding Statement by host: As you approach the end of your talk, say something like, "Let mebriefly restate these main points…"ROLE PLAY (TALK SHOW ACTIVITY)

1. You will be divided into group which consist of 3 – 5 People.
2. Decide the role of each member:
   - Host
   - Guest
3. Decide the types of Talk show and find an interesting topic.
4. The duration will take 10 – 15 Minutes.
5. Make the talk show as interesting as you can.
6. While one group performs their talk show, the other students pretend as an audience and pleasesupport your friends' group.
7. Audiences are able have a question to the guest.

NEWS ANCHOR

THE TABLE OF CONTENTS

1) What is a News Anchor?
2) What is the different between News presenter and Anchor?
3) What Does a News Anchor Do?
4) How read and speak like a news anchor?
5) Opening and closing phrases
6) Script examples
7) Let's Practice!

1. What Is a News Anchor?

A news anchor is someone who presents the news, either on local or network television stations.News anchors are usually on-camera behind a desk, and present breaking news stories and information regarding current events to the public.

2. What is the different between News presenter and Anchor?

A reporter is one who gathers news on the current events and an anchor is a person who just sitsdown in front of camera and delivers the news to the people. Anchor also called as anchorman, anchor woman, news presenter and newsreader..... Sometimes the anchor also does the job of writing news but only in rare cases.

3. What Does a News Anchor Do?

A news anchor's job description includes delivering local newscasts or news coverage at the national level. Anchors often report from a teleprompter, but also take in any sudden informationtheir news team may feed to them if a breaking story or event occurs.

4. How read and speak like a news anchor?

a) Do verbal exercises to warm up your voice.

Shake any tension in your arms and legs loose, roll your neck in circles, and scrunch up your face and release it. You can also loosen your jaw by yawning as widely as you can. Then, say each vowel sound and draw them out to relax your throat (for example, a becomes aaaaahhhhhh).

- Breathe slowly, in through the nose and out through the mouth.
- Spend at least 5 minutes practicing exercises before you read, and set aside 10-15 minutes if youare preparing for an audition or job.

b) Enunciate each word carefully.

Make sure that you pronounce each word fully and correctly. This can help you speak a little more slowly and your voice will sound clear. This can also help reduce the sound of some accents.

- For example, if you tend to drop the end of -ing words, slow down and make sure you say the whole word (fishin' vs. fishing).

c) Slow down your pace.

In day-to-day situations, you might speak more quickly than you realize. For news reporting, you will need to slow down the pace you speak at and carefully enunciate each word. Most reporters aim for a pace of around 150-170 words per minute.

d) Use a neutral accent.

While there is no rule saying you can't have a strong accent as a reporter, most networks prefer their newscasters to speak with a neutral accent. Try repeating something the reporter says usingthe same accent and tone.

e) Try for an energetic tone.

It can be hard to strike the right balance of sounding upbeat without sounding hyper. A good ruleof thumb is to pretend you're telling the news to a friend.

f) Avoid slang and colloquialisms.

Stick with the script the way it is written. It will probably sound more formal than you are usedto sounding in your everyday conversation.

g) Stay away from filler words.

Words like "um," "like," and "uh" are common in everyday speech but they make reporters soundless confident. If you catch yourself about to use a filler word, take a pause instead.

Opening and closing phrases

Opening Lines:

1. Hello, and good morning. The truth is our priority, we give justice to your curiosity. Latest news spotted only here on..... news giving you the latest and most credible news for today.
2. Good afternoon Indonesia, it's Thursday, October 22nd you are watching news and we hope you are having a great day here in… this is the national communication network bringing you the top stories that are sure with no bias. For the details of our news…
3. Good morning from the studio…… newsroom at News headquarters here in Jakarta, good to be with you. I am……..
4. Good morning It's Thursday, October 22, 2022, this is theMorning News. Bringingyou the latest news around the globe. "
5. Good morning/afternoon/evening happy Thursday and thanks for joining us today. I am……..and I am…….. here with……..

Closing Lines:

1. That was the news of truth and accuracy from the news republic team. We are hoping everyone is in good condition and also hoping you have a great day ahead. This is…….. News.
2. Those were the top stories for this hour. We do not just secure the freedom we defend whatpeople deserve. You can contact us through these numbers flashed in your screen. Share yourfeedback and make us aware of the hot news you have. Good day.
3. And that's all for today's time sizzling news. Once again, I am_____ and I am delivering news from worldwide towards one united direction this is united rear center. Have a great day.
4. You have just heard the latest news around the globe. Again this is_____News. News with no bias, news with no exception delivering nothing but the truth. This has been (Anchorname) and (2nd Anchor name) bringing you the latest news around the globe. Thank you forbeing with us.
5. That is the Morning News for this Monday. Thanks for watching, I am_____ have a great day.

Script examples

a) Weather Report:

Welcome to the weather forecast. Now, let's see what the weather is like today. In the north ofthe country, it's very windy and cold. There is a chance of some rain too, so don't leave home without your umbrella! The temperature is around 10º centigrade. In the east it is rainy all day today, I'm afraid. There may be a thunderstorm in the afternoon. The temperature is a bit higher,at around 13º.

In the west and middle of the country, the weather is dry but cloudy. So no rain for you, but it isquite windy and the temperature is just 10º. The south of the country has the best weather today. It is cloudy mostof the time but sunny this afternoon. The temperature is around 15º.

b) News reporter 1

"Hello and welcome. Flowers are being laid today in honor of a local teenager who went missing last Tuesday. Jessie, fourteen, went missing last week after an unknown figure took herwhilst walking home from school. It is still early days in the investigation and witnesses are being questioned into the disappearance of this young woman. Jessie has been described as an outgoing girl full of life. We have a full description of Jessie during the time of the disappearance; she was wearing her school uniform that includes a navy blaze and skirt combination, with a distinct purple tie".

c) News reporter 2:

Breaking news today as four more children go missing from their homes on the same quaintstreet, where last week we saw this strange occurrence arise. The chief investigator from Surrey police has quoted the incidence today calling it "a freak act of trepidation". He wouldalso like to remind people from the community that this is an unlikely incidence and that anyinformation that is being withheld should be informed to a member of the police force".Let's practice!

Opening phrases:

_____

_____

_____

News Report

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

Closing Phrases

_____

_____

DRAMA

A. Expression

Although it may seem counterintuitive, most of our communication with other people has very little to do with words, and much more to do with our body language and the way thatwe say things.[1] Many people struggle to express themselves clearly; fortunately, however,there are many ways and mediums that will help you to become more expressive.

Method 1 - Communicating

1. Use hand gestures

There is evidence that using hand gestures when you talk makes people more likelyto listen to you. It can also help you remember what it is you are trying to say.
Don't make them too big! Your hand gestures should be kept "inside the box". This means keeping your hands inside the area of the top of your chest and the bottom of your waist. Outside of that, and they will become distracting.

2. Use your face to convey emotion

This takes a lot of practice, most of which you must do on your own. The best communicators, however, know how to use their face in order to make their point.
Arching an eyebrow can convey that you are surprised or skeptical about something.
Frown when you disapprove or are concerned about something.
Grimace when you are worried, afraid, or in pain.

3. Become aware of your body language

This can be tricky for some. However, your body language is usually the first thing people will notice, so it is important to be aware of what you are conveying.
If you want to appear more confident, assume a "power pose".] This means standing with your feet apart and your chin slightly elevated (not pointed in the air). If you are sitting in achair, you might lean back and put your hands behind your head. This will not only make you look more confident, but it may also help you feel more confident.

Method 2 - Using Your Voice

1. Vary the volume

This can help keep your voice from becoming monotone. You should always speak loudly enough so that everyone who is listening can hear you, but you can vary the volume to make it more interesting. Be careful that you aren't shouting, though!

When you are telling a story you can begin quietly and raise the volume as you reach the climax of the story.

2. Vary the pitch

This is very important for being more expressive. If you raise your pitch, your voice will become slightly higher, if you lower your pitch, it will become slightly deeper. For example, when asking a question, most people tend to raise the pitch.
If you want to make a positive statement, or agree with an idea, ending a statement on a slightly lower pitch is a good idea.

3. Use pauses

When speaking, this can be difficult. Often a pause of even a few seconds can seem like an eternity if you are a bit shy in social situations. However, using pauses creates dramaand makes you appear more confident. Pausing can also give listeners a chance to absorb what you have said.

4. Practice speaking

If you find that you have a hard time being expressive with your voice, then keep practicing!
You can do this by practicing speeches by yourself, in front of a mirror.
You could also do this in a public speaking class, or with a trusted friend or teacher.

B. Types of Characters

1. Role

Character role refers to the part that one plays in the story. As you probably know, the most important role in any story is the protagonist (whichwe'll discuss below). This means all other roles stem from their relationship tothe protagonist. Basically, these types define how characters interact and affect one another.

Types based on role include:

- Protagonist
- Antagonist
- Deuteragonist
- Tertiary
- Confidante
- Love interest
- Foil

Some of these roles can overlap. A deuteragonist might be the MC's confidante. The antagonist might be their foil. Or the antagonist might eventually become theprotagonist's love interest! (Any fans of the enemies-to-lovers trope up in here?)

a. Protagonist

The protagonist is likely a pretty familiar concept for most of us: this is the main character, the big cheese, the star of the show. Most of the action centers aroundthem, and they're the one we're meant to care about the most.

Every single story has to have a protagonist, no matter what. Simply put, no protagonist = no plot. Remember, all other roles are defined in relation to the protagonist — so if you're currently planning a story, this should be the very firstcharacter you flesh out.

Protagonist examples: Harry Potter, Frodo Baggins, Katniss Everdeen, John McClane, Dorothy Gale, Hercule Poirot, Indiana Jones, Walter White (who isactually an anti-hero, as opposed to the traditional hero).

Indiana Jones — a classic protag if there ever was one. Image: Paramount Pictures

b. Antagonist

If you're an antagonist, you antagonize — it's what you do. Specifically, you undermine, thwart, battle, or otherwise oppose one character: the protagonist.

Antagonists usually play just as important a role in a story as their protagonistic counterparts, but they may not be seen as much. They tend not to narrate storiesand often operate in secret. Indeed, the question of "What will the antagonist donext?" can be a source of great narrative tension in a story.

Antagonist examples: Sauron, Voldemort, The White Witch, Count Olaf, Maleficent, Iago, Regina George

c. Deuteragonist

Most stories have a primary protagonist and a secondary deuteragonist (or groupof deuteragonists). This is the character who's not exactly in the spotlight, but pretty close to it. The deuteragonist's comic book equivalent would probably be the sidekick.

They're often seen in the company of the protagonist — giving advice, plotting against their rivals, and generally lending a helping hand. Their presence and closerelationship to the protagonist gives the story warmth and heart, so it's not just about the hero's journey, but about the friends they make along the way (awww). Of course, not all secondary figures are friends — some are arch- enemies — but even these less-friendly deuteragonists still lend depth to a story.

Deuteragonist examples: Ron and Hermione, Samwise Gamgee, Lumiere andCogsworth, Jane Bennet, Dr. Watson, Mercutio

d. Tertiary characters

The reason that tertiary characters aren't called "tertagonists" is because they're not important enough to really agonize anything or anyone. They flit in and out ofthe MC's life, perhaps only appearing in one or two scenes throughout the book.

In the following list of examples, we've put the sources of these tertiary characters in addition to their names, just in case you don't recognize them. (Wecertainly couldn't blame you.)

Tertiary examples: Mr. Poe in A Series of Unfortunate Events, Radagast in The Lord of the Rings, Padma and Parvati Patil in Harry Potter, Calo and Fabrizio in TheGodfather, Madame Stahl in Anna Karenina

Who the heck is this guy? Doesn't really matter, he's tertiary. Image: Warner Bros.

e. Love interest

Most novels contain romance in one form or another. It might be the main plot, asubplot, or just a blip on the narrative radar — but no matter how it features, there has to be some sort of love interest involved. This love interest is typically adeuteragonist, but not exclusively (hence why this separate category).

You'll recognize a love interest by the protagonist's strong reaction to them, though that reaction can vary widely. Some love interests make their MC swoon;others make them scoff. The protagonist often denies their feelings for this person at first, or vice-versa, which is a great plot-thickening device.

Love interest examples: Mr. Darcy, Daisy Buchanan, Romeo/Juliet, Peeta Mellark, Edward Cullen, Mary Jane Watson

f. Confidant

This one's even harder to pin down, especially since many stories focus so muchon their MC's love interest that other relationships get left out in the cold.
However, the confidant can still be one of the most profound relationships the protagonist has in a novel.

Confidants are often best friends, but they may also be a potential love interest oreven a mentor. The protagonist shares their thoughts and emotions with this person, even when they're reluctant to share with anyone else. However, the confidant might also be someone the MC turns to, not because they want to, butbecause they feel they have no other choice (as in the last example on this list).

Confidant examples: Horatio, Friar Laurence, Alfred Pennyworth, Mrs Lovett,Jacob Black,

Dumbledore, Hannibal Lecter

g. Foil character

A foil is someone whose personality and values fundamentally clash with the protagonist's. This clash highlights the MC's defining attributes, giving us a betterpicture of who they truly are.

Though these two often have an antagonistic relationship, the foil is not usuallythe primary antagonist. Sometimes the MC and their foil clash at first, but eventually see past their differences to become friends… or even more. (Think about the protagonists in When Harry Met Sally: first they're foils, then friends, then finally lovers.)

The foil's precise relationship to the protagonist depends on the differences between them. For example, if the MC is introverted, their foil might be superextroverted, but that wouldn't necessarily preclude the two of them from becoming friends. However, if the MC is kind and selfless and their foil isextremely self-serving, they're probably not going to get along.

Foil examples: Draco Malfoy, Effie Trinket, Lydia Bennet, George and Lennie, Kirkand Spock

Clearly foils. Just look at that color symbolism. Image: Lionsgate

C. Assessment

Category	Feedback	Grade
Grabbed attention
Easy to understand
Body language
Eye contact
Gestures
Blocking
Vocal quality
Confident
Pronunciation
Entertaining		